Un reportaje sobre la lucha contra el traslado de residuos nucleares y por el cierre de las centrales

11//2008.

Every two years the tiny German town of Gorleben receives tons of radiactive waste to be stocked at an underground storage facility nearby. Every new train from La Hague in France- the origin of the waste- becomes a fight when entering Gorleben. Thousands of activists tried also this year to block the train. They delayed it 36 hours but they didn't manage to stop it. They have never done.
